SETTLE POOLING QUESTION

Society Renews Contract With Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Co.

MR. SHREWSBERRY ELECTED CHAIRMAN OF SOCIETY

The regular monthly meeting of the Society of Equity was held at Hardinsburg last Monday. There was a good attendance of members and tobacco growers. The meeting was lively from start to finish and reminded one of an old time political convention. The absorbing question was the letting of the contract to finance, handle, store and sell the 1907 crop of tobacco.

President Wilson called the meeting to order and said: "We are here this afternoon to consider two propositions for selling and storing the 1907 crop of tobacco. He referred to the last meeting, held in June in which a contract was submitted by Beard & Hensley. This contract was not satisfactory to all the members and to make it satisfactory a committee was appointed at that meeting to hunt up another contract and report to this meeting. The business of this meeting is to receive report of that committee. He advised harmony in this meeting. Those who differ in their views on this matter should be fair and considerate, be respectful, proceed in order and harmony, protect the organization; it is bigger than any man and should be preserved. He then called for the report of the committee. Mr. Shrewsbury, chairman of the committee, reported that the committee went to Louisville and conferred with the Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Co. and was offered the same proposition they had last year. He said they agreed to allow the society to employ an expert bookkeeper to go over the books and allow the Society every cent of profit above selling fee. He said he thought this a better contract than Beard & Hensley's and advised that it be accepted. Mr. Silas Miller, another member of the committee, said he was in favor of the Louisville contract. Mr. Sharp, District Organizer from Ohio county, moved that all the regularly appointed delegates be seated. Mr. Monarch offered a substitute to the motion giving all farmers and tobacco growers present a right to vote on the proposition. Mr. Miller wanted to know if the other vote was by delegates or by tobacco growers.

The chairman overruled the motion, saying it was out of order, that this was not a delegate vote but a vote of the tobacco growers. Mr. Sharp took exception to this ruling and said it was an Equity meeting and none but duly appointed delegates should be allowed to vote. Mr. Monarch contended that any tobacco grower had a right to vote on the proposition. From this on the meeting got into a regular wrangle and it some pretty hot words passed. The chairman rapped for order and after quiet was restored the two contracts read and a vote taken which resulted in 45 for the Beard & Hensley contract and 56 for the Louisville contract. This concluded the business of the mass convention.

The chairman then called the regular meeting of the society to order and the delegates took their seats. Chairman Wilson offered his resignation as President on account of his removal to the West. Mr. Shrewsbury was elected to fill his place, defeating John Monarch by one vote.

"PAYS THEM NO MIND"

City Council Ignores Saloonists' Demand For Return of Privileges.

At the regular monthly meeting of the city council Monday night the formal demand made by Weisenberg & Mullen at a previous meeting for the return of money paid into the city treasury for saloon privileges, received only passing notice. At the former meeting the matter was referred to the Finance Committee. The committee did not think the matter of sufficient importance to report upon it, and apparently the view taken by the council as a whole, as they passed the demand up as unworthy of notice.

The demand was made by Messrs. Weisenberg & Mullen through their attorney, Mr. Gus Brown, of Hardinsburg, who stated that it was only a formality previous to instituting civil proceedings in the Circuit Court against the city.

Messrs. Weisenberg & Mullen ask for the return of $1,000 saloon privileges for one year, claiming that by a recent decision of the Court of Appeals they were forced to close their doors before the expiration of their license, and that the council is, therefore, obligated for the return of the full amount paid for a year's privileges.

THE BEST MEETING IN HISTORY

Epworth Leagues Have Profitable and Pleasant Sessions.

HENDERSON SELECTED AS PLACE FOR NEXT MEETING

Henderson was selected by the District Epworth League as the next place for holding its annual convention. The exact date has not been set, but the meeting will be held some time in June. The annual convention of the Louisville Methodist Conference Epworth League adjourned in this city on last Thursday evening after a three days' meeting.

The attendance was the largest in the history of the League, there being ninety-one delegates enrolled, representing, with one or two exceptions, every league in the district.

From every standpoint the meeting was a most decided success. The talks made by the leaguers were full of wit and wisdom and the lectures were very instructive. The choir rendered most excellent music and to its members is due great credit for much of the pleasure of the meeting. The social feature was immensely enjoyed; the business sessions were full of interest, and the program in every other particular, as carried out, added to both the pleasure and profit derived from the convention. The enthusiasm with which the delegates entered into their work, the vim and vigor displayed throughout the proceedings, and the Christian spirit and hearty good cheer prevailing at all times made this withal the banner meeting.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: H. B. Fleece, Louisville, President. Robert Claxton, Owensboro, First Vice President.

Mrs. Mary Reid, Hopkinsville, Second Vice President. Miss Mayme De Haven, Cloverport, Third Vice President.

E. O. Harbin, Louisville, Fourth Vice President. Miss Francis Munkle, Bowling Green, Junior Superintendent.

J. Clift Pritchett, Madison, Treasurer. N. Gray Rochester, Marion, Secretary. Prof. W. H. Pritchett, Head Master Louisville Training School, Beechmont, Ky., Central Methodist League Editor.

Conference Notes

At the last meeting of the Conference which was held Thursday night the auditorium of the church was not large enough to hold the crowd that had gathered there for the occasion. The Sunday School room had to be thrown open to accommodate the people, and the Rev. B. M. Currie's wish that the last service might be a good one, if not the best, came true.

The "Quiet Hour Services" were as inspiring and helpful as the were early and the Rev. S. M. Miller, in the still hours of the morning, gave some beautiful talks.

Mrs. S. C. Shelly, formerly of this city, made several short talks during the meeting.

Miss Frances Munkle, Mrs. J. H. McKee, and Miss Kate Mason read interesting papers in regard to the various departments of League work.

Among the visiting Leaguers, whose music was greatly appreciated were Miss Thompson and Miss Thompson, of Owensboro, who sang, and H. Tyler Watts, of Louisville, who played divinely on the violin.

Rev. S. M. Miller, of Jeffersonville, and Rev. F. E. Lewis, president of the League Board, were two of the most popular bachelors.

H. B. Fleece, a prominent lawyer of Louisville, representative of the Broadway Methodist church of that city, and who had charge of the Missionary Department was made president of the Conference Board for the ensuing year.

First, That we congratulate Cloverport on its beautiful church, elegant homes and lack of saloons.

Second, That we offer our sincere thanks to the people of Cloverport for their abundant hospitality, and the pastor, Rev. B. M. Currie, and reception committee for their interesting and effectual efforts to make us comfortable.

Third, That the choir be thanked for its sweet music throughout the conference.

Fourth, That we thank the Board and conference officers for their service during the past year.

Fifth, That we recommend the Epworth Era and Central Methodist to every league and leaguer within the bounds of the Louisville Conference.

Sixth, That we ask our leaguers to send reports throughout the year to the League editor to be published on the League page of the Central Methodist.

Seventh, That we urge our Leaguers to have the five-cent Conference assessment ready to send to the session of the Conference.

Eighth, That we urge upon each delegate the benefit of an echo meeting in giving encouragement and new life to leaguers.

Ninth, That the spirit of this Conference, namely, "A more complete surrender and greater preparation for service," be carried home by every delegate and put into practice.

F. E. Lewis, Pres.; D. A. Walker, Mr. Rochester.

HARROWING EXPERIENCE

Price Wilson Gets Mixed Up With Montana Pony In Runaway

Scrape and Is Painfully Hurt.

That the Montana pony was somewhat wild when in the hands of the buyer in question and that he is best where he is asked or dead are two facts that Mr. Price Wilson is sore he knows.

Mr. Wilson lives across the river from Holt. He owned a Montana pony and one day last week was working him to a plow. Just as things were at their most serene state, like the still before a storm, the pony decided to give an exhibition of Western ranch life, with Mr. Wilson to do the cow boy stunt. Mr. Wilson was not made acquainted with the animal's meditations until they were put into active operation, and his introduction to the new turn of affairs was a two-fold pace around the field, with the pony's heels, his plow and himself veering with one another as to which could go up in the air the farthest and light the hardest. During this lightning tour of premises the pony was in the lead, with Mr. Wilson and the plow bringing up a creditable rear.

Mr. Wilson finally extricated himself from his unenviable, as well as perilous, position, while the pony continued his mad race, ending up at the bottom of a high cliff, and taking his final flight into pony land.

Mr. Wilson was badly bruised up and was under the care of a physician for several days. He is about well now.

FOURTH OF JULY

"LID IS ON"

Not Much In Store For the Young

America of Cloverport Tomorrow In Way of Celebrating.

To-morrow Is the Glorious Fourth! To the small boy in many of the cities and towns it means a day of joy, followed by many more days spent in repentance. The young America of Cloverport is practically safe from the dangers that often beset the youngsters when they get too familiar with the fireworks incident to a Fourth of July celebration, as "the lid is on" with a vengeance when it comes to the small boy and a gun or other firearms getting mixed up in the joyful revelry, and the day will probably have little more in store for them than any other day.

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Pauley, of Mattoon, Ill., are the guests of relatives. Mr. Pauley will return home this week, but Mrs. Pauley will spend a month with her mother.

THEY TARRY OVER NIGHT

Party of Chicagoans Wide Right In, Snooze Awhile, and Ride Right Out Again.

An auto car bearing a party of Chicago millionaires, bankers and theatrical managers, "choo-chooed" into Cloverport Monday night and tarried till early morning. The party consisted of Joseph Leiter, millionaire and erstwhile "beast king," Will J. Davis, of the Ironsides Theater, and G. W. Lederer, theatrical manager, together with the wives of Messrs. Davis and Lederer. The party spent Sunday at the Seelbach, in Louisville; Monday night was spent at the Pate House, in this city. The hint was dropped that they were making a tour of several of the principal cities with a view of establishing large theatres. Whether or not Cloverport will be favored with some of their capital along this line time will serve to tell, but it is safe to say that not over $500,000 will be put into a theatre in this city should they decide to build. The impression got out that the party was considering the Tobinport wharf landing as a favorable site for the theatre, but this proved a mistake, the cause of their sojourn there being a mire down of the auto car.

CHAPTER V.

THREE were four days out from port. Two days more and they would sight Sandy Hook, and Shirley would know the worst. She had caught the North German Lloyd boat at Cherbourg two days after receiving the cablegram from New York. Mrs. Blake had insisted on coming along in spite of her niece's protests. Shirley argued that she had crossed alone when coming; she could go back the same way. Besides, was not Mr. Ryder returning home on the same ship? He would be company and protection both. But Mrs. Blake was bent on making the voyage, and had not seen her sister for many years and, moreover, this sudden summons from America had upset her own plans.

The alarming summons home and the terrible shock she had experienced the following morning when Jefferson showed her the newspaper article with its astounding and heart-rending news about her father had almost prostrated Shirley. The blow was all the greater or being so entirely unlooked for, that the story was so completely untrue. Her mother would not have called except under the gravest circumstances. What started Shirley with news was that she had no direct news of her father. For a moment her lips quivered. "Suppose the shock of this financial association had killed him? Her blood chilled. She shuddered her teeth and her hands into her flesh as she thought of the dread possibility that she had looked upon him in life for the first time. She remembered his last kind words when he came to the steamer to see her off and his kiss when he said good-bye, and she had noticed a tear of which he was ashamed to be ashamed. The hot tears welled up in her own eyes and coursed unbidden down her cheeks.

Suddenly she heard a familiar step behind her, and Jefferson joined her at the rail. The wind was west and blowing half a gale, so that they were standing one of the upper decks out of the ship. It was difficult to keep one's feet, to say nothing of bearing any one speak.

"It's pretty windy here, Shirley," shouted Jefferson, steadily himself against a stanchion. "Don't you want to walk a little?"

He had begun to call her by her first name quite casually, as if it were a matter of course. Indeed, their relations had come to be more like those of brother and sister than anything else. Shirley was too much troubled with the news from home to have a mind for other things, and in her distress she had turned to Jefferson for advice and help as she would have looked to an older brother.

He was sorry for Judge Rosemore, of course, and there was nothing he would not do on his return to secure a withdrawal of the charges. That his father would use his influence he had no doubt, but meantime he was selfish enough to be glad for the opportunity it gave him to be a whole week alone with Shirley.

Thus events, combined with the weather, conspired to bring Shirley and Jefferson more closely together. The sea had been rough ever since they sailed, keeping Mrs. Blake confined to her stateroom almost continuously. They were therefore constantly in one another's company, and slowly, unconsciously, there was taking root in their hearts the new and friendly relationship that had been born of real and lasting love—the love born of something higher than mere physical attraction, the noble, more enduring affection that is born of mutual sympathy, association and companionship.

Jefferson had been casting furtive glances at his companion, and as he noted her serene, peaceful face he thought how pretty she was. He wondered what she was thinking of, and suddenly inspired no doubt by the mysterious power that enables some people to read the thoughts of others, he said abruptly:

"Shirley, I can read your thoughts. You were thinking of me."

She was thinking for a moment, but immediately recovered her self possession. It never occurred to her to deny it. She pondered for a moment, and then replied:

"You are right, Jeff. I was thinking of you. How did you guess that?"

He leaned over her and took her hand. She made no resistance. Her delicate, slender hand lay passively in his big brown hand, and he grasped it firmly, cordially. He whispered:

"What were you thinking of me—good or bad?"

"Good, of course. How could I think anything bad of you?"

She turned her eyes on him in wonderment; then she went on:

"I was wondering how a girl could distinguish between the feeling she has for a man she merely likes and the feeling she has for a man she loves."

the moonlight. Her thoughts traveling faster than the ship, Shirley suddenly asked:

"Do you really think Mr. Ryder will use his influence to help my father?"

Jefferson said his jaw fast and the familiar ivory gleam came into his eyes as he responded:

"Why not? My father is all powerful. He has made and unmade judges and legislators and even presidents. Why should he not be able to put a stop to these propositions?"

"I will go to him directly we land, and we'll see what can be done."

So the time on shipboard had passed, Shirley alternately buoyed up by hope and again depressed by the gloomiest forebodings. The following night they passed Cape Cod, and next day the huge steamer dropped anchor at quarantine.

CHAPTER VI.

A MONTH had passed since the memorable meeting of the directors of the Southern and Transcontinental railroad in New York, and during that time not John Burkett Ryder nor Judge Rosemore had been seen. The former had immediately set in motion the machinery he controlled in the legislature at Washington, while the judge neglected no step to vindicate himself before the public.

Ryder, for reasons of his own—probably because he wished to make the blow the more crushing when it did fall—had insisted on the proceedings at the board meeting being kept a profound secret, and some time elapsed before the newspapers got wind of the coming congressional inquiry.

It was a blow of colossal dimensions had believed the stories about Judge Rosemore, but now that a final official seal had been set on the current issue, it was a blow of colossal dimensions from the journalistic muck rakers. What was the country coming to? They cried in double-banded type, the country coming to believe in the honesty of the railroads, the honesty of the country's treasury, the greed of the trusts, the grafting of the legislators, the corruption of the judiciary. The last bulwark of the nation had fallen. The country lay helpless at the mercy of its unscrupulous rulers. Even the judges were no longer to be trusted. The most respected one among them all had been found to be a traitor to the people's trust, the living voice of the constitution, was honeycombed with graft. Public life was rotten to the core.

Neither the newspapers nor the public stopped to ascertain the truth or the falsity of the charges against Judge Rosemore. It was such a case of bribery story furnished the daily sensation which newspaper editors and newspaper readers must have. The world was ever unready to believe ill rather than good of a man, and no one, except in Rosemore's immediate circle of friends, entertained the slightest doubt of his guilt. It was common knowledge that the "big interests" were behind the proceedings, and that Judge Rosemore was a scapegoat, sacrificed by the system because he had been blocking their game. If Rosemore had really accepted the bribe, and few now believed him spotless, he deserved all that was coming to him. Senator Roberts was very active in Washington preparing the case against Judge Rosemore. The latter being the party which was in the minority, and "the interests" controlling a majority in the house, it was a foregone conclusion that the inquiry would be against him, and that a demand would at once be made upon the senate for his impeachment.

Almost prostrated by the misfortune which had so suddenly and unexpectedly come upon him, Judge Rosemore was like a man demented. His reason seemed to be tottering, he spoke and acted like a man in a dream. Naturally he was entirely incapacitated for work, and he had applied to Washington to be temporarily relieved from his judicial duties. He was instantly granted a leave of absence and went at once to his home in Madison avenue, where he shut himself up in his library, sitting for hours at his desk wrestling with documents and legal tomes in a pathetic endeavor to find some way out, trying to find out in which sense his hands had entangled him.

What an end to his career! To have struggled and achieved for half a century, to have built up a reputation year by year, as a man builds a house brick by brick, only to see the whole edifice crumble to ruin, and to be degraded the respect of the country, to have made a name as the most incorruptible of public servants, and now to be branded as a corrupt bribe taker! Could he be dreaming? It was too incredible! What would his daughter say—his Shirley? Ah, the thought of the expression of incredulity and despair on her face when she heard the news cut him to the heart like a knife thrust. Yet he must, he very unwillingly to believe it about himself, be his consolation. Ah, his wife and his child—they knew he had been innocent of wrongdoing. The very idea was ridiculous. At such a crisis he was careless. Yet he was certainly to blame. He ought to have seen the trap so carefully prepared and into which he had walked as if blindfolded. That extra $50,000 worth of stock, on which he had never received a cent interest, had been the decoy in a carefully thought out plot. The plotters, well known how ignorant he was of financial matters, and he had been an easy victim. Who would believe his story that the stock had been sent to him with a plausibly worded letter to the effect that it represented a bonus on his own investment? Now he came to think of it calmly and reasonably he would not believe it himself. As usual, he had mislaid or destroyed the

SUNDAY GIVEN OVER TO THE CHILDREN

Little Folks of Methodist and Presbyterian Churches Render Appropriate Exercises

Sunday in this city was a busy day for the children of the Methodist and Presbyterian Sunday Schools, the former celebrating Children's Day service at 11 o'clock before noon and the latter giving a splendid program at 8 o'clock in the evening.

The exercises at the Methodist church were beautiful and entertaining, the classes of Mrs. Bower, Miss Georgia White, and Miss Elizabeth Skillman, leading in the principal ones. An attractive hoop drill was rendered by some of the most faithful girls of the Sunday School and was greatly admired. Mrs. Smith's class which is now in charge of Miss Louise Babbage, gave one of their songs and it was thoroughly enjoyed. This class is composed of young girls who have formed a Sunday School choir which is quite an addition to the school services every Sunday.

Miss Ida White, Mrs. Leon McGarock, Mrs. Charles B. Skillman, and Misses Fava and Miss May assisted the teachers in drilling the pupils for the occasion. Miss Margaret Barn, whose music is a great pleasure to the Sunday School, was pianist. Superintendent Jno. Bura, delivered an address in the absence of the pastor, Rev. B. M. Currie.

The morning services at the Methodist church did not interfere with "Children's Hosanna" at the Lucile Memorial in the evening for the auditorium was completely filled with an appreciative audience. The program of the evening was one of great credit to the pupils and Sunday School workers of the Presbyterian church.

Two parts that showed excellent training were: The Flag Drill and the selection, "Angels Hovering Around," and a number of children took part in both of the exercises. Besides these two the program included many good recitations and some good old time songs which the congregation enjoyed.

Mr. Con Shipley delivered the invocation and Mr. Wilbur Hamman, who is home from college at Danville, pronounced the benediction.

Telegraphers Wanted.

Twenty-three railroads have asked the Bowling Green Business University for telegraphy students trained in that institution. Though it is the largest telegraphy school south of the Ohio river, it is unable to supply the demand made upon it for operators. The same is true of bookkeepers and stenographers. Young people never had a better opportunity to secure certain and remunerative positions.

Death of Young Lady.

CHENAU, KY.
At 8:30 Saturday morning the angels of death came and took Miss Pineda Cordelia Walls away from her friends. She had neither father nor mother, only one small brother. Her parents left her when she was quite small. And for the past four years she has made her home with the family of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stallman who cared and loved her the same as one of the family. They did for her all that was in their power to do while her sickness and never wanted or asked for a thing of what it was granted her. Her death was caused of consumption.

But Pineda's grave is dark and cold and her beautiful voice is heard no more. Her place is vacant for ever and ever, never more to be filled again.

A kind cheerful disposition won her a place in affections of all. At school she was loved by her teacher and universal favorite of her playmates, and many a heart gave a momentary throb of pain when her death was announced.

She died in the peace and love of God and many affectionate friends to mourn her loss.

The funeral took place from St. Theresa's church by Rev. Father J. P. Ruesias, pastor, Sunday morning at 9:30 o'clock. May she rest in peace.

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart or The Kidneys. Trouble of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—nervous Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy ever claimed to treat the "inside nerves". Also for blotting, blotches, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me to-day for sample and free Book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold sold by Severs Drug Co.
